

Documents on Diplomacy: Exercises

Expression of Concern in the Atomic Age

JOHN FOSTER DULLES & DWIGHT EISENHOWER, 1951-1952

1. Deficient in faith
2. Deny them the pursuit of happiness
3. Repression of patriotism
4. Dictatorship of the proletariat
5. Like unto whited sepulchers
6. Graveyard of human liberties
7. Strike back where it hurts
8. Lose in punishment more than they can gain by aggression
9. Effective political weapon in defense of the peace
10. Military force of a king
11. A static political role
12. Truths work in and through us
13. Use ideas as weapons
14. Negative policy of "containment" and "stalemate"
15. So much hope for so many people
16. Great share of wisdom, courage and faith
17. If a danger exists in the world, it is a danger shared by all
18. The language of atomic warfare
19. Fearful engines of atomic might
20. Two atomic colossi are doomed malevolently to eye each other indefinitely across a trembling world
21. Move out of the dark chamber of horrors
22. Free intermingling of the peoples of the East and of the West
23. Peaceful power from atomic energy is no dream of the future
24. Acceptable system of world-wide inspection and control
25. To help solve the fearful atomic dilemma